At last, my love has come along... with the cash to pay for this song

Want to hear an Etta James classic at your wedding?

You could be asked to pay royalties for it first

Money can't buy love — but if you want some great tunes playing at your wedding, it's going to cost you.

The Copyright Board of Canada has certified new tariffs that apply to recorded music used at live events including conventions, karaoke bars, ice shows, fairs and, yes, weddings.

The fees will be collected by a not-for-profit called Re:Sound.

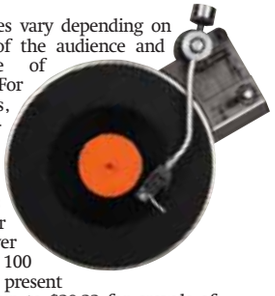
While the Society of Composers, Authors and Music Publishers of Canada (SOCAN) already collects money from many of these events for the songwriters, Re:Sound will represent the record labels and performers who contributed to the music.

"Recorded music is a vital part of the business model for many live events and, indeed, it is impossible to imagine a fashion show, festival, parade or karaoke bar without music," Re:Sound's director of licensing, Martin Gangnier, said in a statement.

It's up to organizers of public events or owners of wedding venues or bars to pay those royalties, so it may be up to the business to decide whether to pass that cost on — for instance, to those happy newlyweds.

"Essentially it's up to the business that owes the royalty to decide exactly what their accounting will be, where it comes from," said Re:Sound director of communications Matthew Fortier.

The reporting process works on the honour system, though Fortier said his organization has a team of licensing professionals across Canada to ensure the rules are being followed.



The fees vary depending on the size of the audience and the type of event. For weddings, conventions, and fashion shows, the fee is $9.25 per day if fewer than 100 people are present and goes up to $39.33 for crowds of more than 500. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Band councillor to Fantino: 'Do I look like I'm still alive?'

Police clash. 'Slippery' George wants Tory MP to respect judge's recommendation and apologize to him regarding his injuries

Quoted

"The apology to all of us needs to come from the one that was supposed to do it." Cecil George

Five years ago, Justice Sidney Linden ruled that then-OPP commissioner Julian Fantino should apologize to Kettle and Stony Point band councillor Cecil Bernard "Slippery" George for near-fatal injuries he suffered during a clash with police.

Three weeks ago, Fantino, now a Conservative MP and the assistant minister of national defence, said he sincerely wanted to apologize to George face-to-face, but was told by Ontario Provincial Police investigators that George was dead.

On Thursday, George, 58, begged to differ.

"Do I look like I'm still alive?" George asked during a break from work at the Kettle and Stony Point band office, where he has been a councillor for the past six years.

George said he's easy to track down, since he has lived in the community of 930 near Sarnia for all of his life. His picture is on a website for the band council, along with his name, and the band also has a media relations officer.

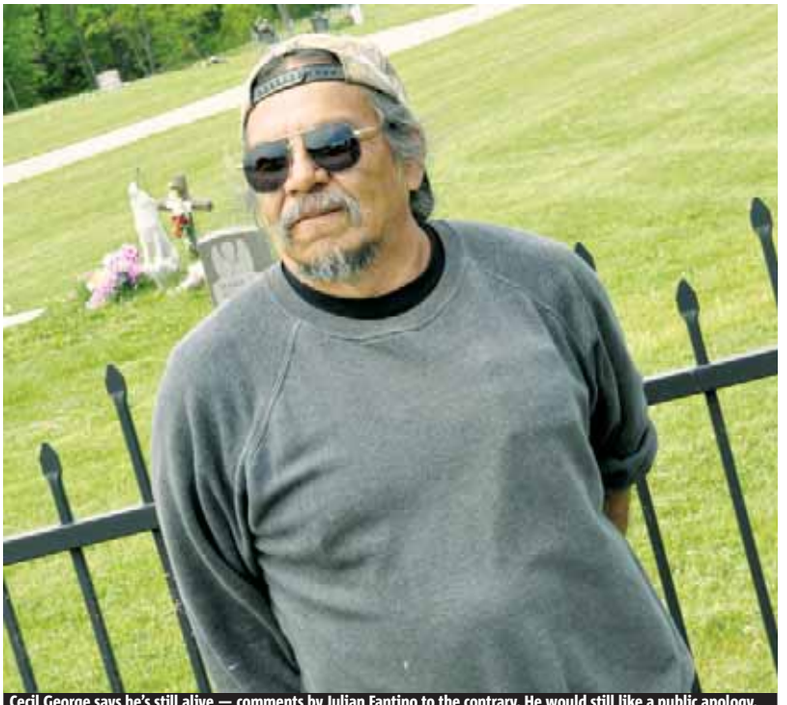
George's name is also on his mailbox, and he said he has never lived anywhere but this community on Lake Ontario.

Fantino could not be reached for comment. A spokesperson said in an email late Thursday afternoon that Fantino now recalls that he offered an apology and it was declined.

George said Thursday he's still awaiting an apology from Fantino and would welcome one.

The Fantino spokesperson also said that two other former OPP commissioners have already apologized to the community. He said that he no longer has authority to act of behalf of the OPP.

George said he feels Fantino should still make the apology and that he should make it to the entire community.



Cecil George says he's still alive — comments by Julian Fantino to the contrary. He would still like a public apology, as recommended by the Ipperwash Inquiry five years ago. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Linden called for the apology from Fantino at the end of a 22-month inquiry into a bloody clash between OPP officers and First Nations activists in September 1995, in the midst of a protest over burial grounds. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Former NHLer gets two years for smuggling marijuana

Sean McMorrow CONTRIBUTED

He was every team's tough guy, a 235-pound bruiser who earned his stripes with his fists as he powered through a spate of Ontario Hockey League teams to a brief, but coveted, stint with the Buffalo Sabres.

On Wednesday, however, Sean McMorrow of Scarborough finally met his match when a U.S. judge handed him two years in a federal prison for organizing and carrying out a marijuana smuggling operation from Toronto to the United States.

"It's an extremely difficult time for the family," said his mother, Sheila McMorrow, a registered nurse who lives in Scarborough. "We will totally be with him through this entire process and support him unconditionally. That's all I can say ... that's all we can do."

McMorrow, a 30-year-old former hockey pro who was drafted by the Buffalo Sabres in 2000, pleaded guilty last September to drug conspiracy charges after an FBI investigation revealed he smuggled drugs across the border while playing for the Buffalo Sabres' farm team, the Rochester Americans, between 2003 and 2005.

In June 2004, Canadian Border Services Agency officers seized $27,000 in cash and a hockey bag that "emitted a strong odor of marijuana" from McMorrow's car.

He "sobbed openly" and pleaded with officers to recognize his clean record and let him go, court documents said. But when officers found bundles of cash reeking of marijuana in his car months later, the burly hockey player admitted that he dealt drugs "on the side."

McMorrow continued trafficking until sometime in 2005, hiring drug couriers, including two college-aged women, to help move the drugs across the border, prosecutors said. Those transactions, however, were on the FBI's radar.

In March 2010, nearly five years later, the U.S. government put out a warrant for McMorrow's arrest. By that time, he had finished four seasons in Rochester and was playing for the Belfast Giants in Northern Ireland. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Between 2003 and 2005, McMorrow toted hockey bags stuffed with at least 50 kilograms of marijuana from a supplier in Toronto, across the Rainbow Bridge in Niagara Falls to buyers in New York State, according to court documents.

Drug squad case

Evidence against officers not improving with age: Lawyer

The Crown's case against five former drug squad officers is so old, and the memories of its witnesses so dim, it's rotten with age, a defence lawyer says.

"A Crown prosecution is not like a bottle of wine. It doesn't get better with time," Peter Brauti, lawyer for Joseph Miched, said in his final arguments at a cop corruption trial Thursday.

"It's like a piece of fruit that rots away," he told an Ontario Superior Court jury.

Faded memories might explain why four key Crown witnesses — who variously claim the officers beat, extorted and robbed them 15 years ago — have given such poor evidence, not just because they are obvious liars, Brauti said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Deputy mayor backs raises for non-union managers

Price to pay. Tab for salaries would be around $30 million over four years

The City of Toronto's non-union managers deserve annual pay raises through 2015, says Deputy Mayor Doug Holyday.

Some 3,900 non-union staffers had their pay frozen in 2009 and were awarded one per cent raises in 2010, while unionized city workers received 1.75 and two per cent increases in those years.

Currently, there are about 3,800 non-union employees. The city's employee and labour relations committee, which Holyday chairs, is being asked to endorse annual increases of 1.9 per cent a year for most of them, retroactive to Jan. 1.

A few dozen senior managers would get annual increases of 2.75 per cent over the four years through 2015.

Altogether, the tab for those raises over four years comes to $30 million.

It's also proposed that city council reinstate lump-sum bonuses for managers at the top of their salary range. The bonuses were cancelled in 2010 and 2011, which meant about 2,600 managers didn't receive bonuses. As a result, the city saved about $11 million.

The committee will discuss the proposals Tuesday, but it will be up to city council to make the final decision.

"Over the past five years, the non-union people have fallen behind," Holyday said. "We think these people are due something. We're paying them more for a job well done, really."

Holyday said the senior management has helped cut costs and trim the workforce.

Leaving their pay as is would have meant letting Toronto fall further behind other cities, making it hard to attract qualified managers, said Richard Majkot, head of the association that represents managers.

"The salaries aren't competitive," said Majkot, executive director of the City of Toronto Administrative, Professional Supervisory Association.

"What do you want to do, hire second best?"

Who did what?

- Ironically, it was former mayor David Miller — denounced as a big spender by Mayor Rob Ford — who froze management's pay in 2009.
- The penny-pinching Ford administration hiked managers' pay 2.25 per cent in 2011 and is now backing additional pay hikes.

Jurisdiction. Battle over child custody should be decided in U.S.: Court

A child-custody dispute involving a new mother who moved to California from Toronto when she was seven months pregnant should be decided in the U.S. state rather than in Ontario, the province's top court ruled Thursday in a case closely watched by women's-rights activists.

The Appeal Court rejected the findings of a lower court judge, who had found the circumstances of the move "analogous to abduction" and decided Ontario courts should have jurisdiction even though the child had never lived in Canada.

In overturning the earlier ruling, the appellate judges found Ontario Superior Court Justice Frances Kiteley had made several errors, including her finding the baby was in need of the court's protection.

"The circumstances of this case ... simply do not give rise to any protection concern," the Appeal Court ruling states.

"California's laws and procedures are similar to those of Ontario, parents have equal rights, and the best interests of the child is the principle upon which judgments pertaining to the child are made."

Now you have a place to park your bike indoors

Toronto's second indoor bike station has opened at the TTC's Victoria Park station, providing secure parking for up to 52 bikes.

"I think it's a great arrangement. We have the bike racks on our buses, but once you get to the subway station you're left scratching your head," said city Coun. Denzil Minnan-Wong, who chairs Toronto's Public Works and Infrastructure Committee.

How does it work?

Cyclists register for Toronto's bike station program at the bicycle station in Union Station on the east side of York Street, which is staffed Monday to Friday 8 a.m. to noon. They get a key fob to swipe on the entry pad near the door that allows them 24/7 access.

How much does it cost?

Toronto's bike station program offers a one-time lifetime registration fee of $26.91 that covers all the city's bike stations. After that there's a $21.53 monthly rate, or $64.57 for four months. The one-day parking fee is $2.15. Cyclists don't need to register if they're only paying for one-day access.

Are more bike stations coming?

Yes. A bigger station will be added to Union Station near Front St., with room for about 180 more bikes, in 2014. The existing 80-space station on the south side will remain. Secure bike stations are also planned as part of the revitalization of Pape station in 2013 and the new Finch West station in 2015.

The Victoria Park bike station has the capacity to expand.

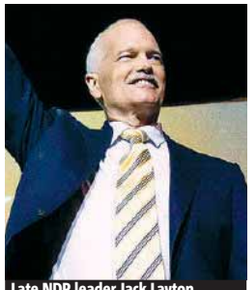
Ferry terminal could be renamed after Jack Layton

Finding a fitting tribute. Council to vote next week on choice of memorial site for former NDP leader and longtime city councillor



Late NDP leader Jack Layton. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Torontonians may soon be flocking to the Jack Layton Ferry Terminal.

City council will vote next week on renaming the Toronto Island Ferry Terminal as this city's way of honouring the former city and Metro councillor, a local icon who surged to national fame as federal NDP leader and had a "special connection" with the islands.

After Layton, 61, was felled by cancer last Aug. 22, Toronto was the epicentre of a wave of national grief that included chalk tributes to Layton and his decades of work for social justice that famously covered Nathan Phillips Square.

Those voting on the council motion, expected to pass unanimously, will include Layton's son, Coun. Mike Layton, who was elected in 2010.

Mayor Rob Ford, who as a rookie councillor sat next to Jack Layton and learned a lot from him, had said the city would find an appropriate way to honour him.

"The Honourable Jack Layton was an academic, a political leader and an activist who inspired Torontonians and ordinary Canadians everywhere," the report states.

Layton was elected councillor in the old downtown Ward 6 in 1982 and served on council from 1982 to 1991. He then served on Metro Council from 1984 to 1988.

After an unsuccessful 1991 mayoral run, Layton was again elected to Metro Council in 1994, joined the amalgamated city council in 1998 and served until 2003, when he won the NDP leadership.

The Toronto Danforth MP's popularity grew, particularly in Quebec, culminating with the 2011 federal election that saw the NDP surge to Official Opposition status. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Report

"The Toronto Ferry Docks were chosen for a renaming due to Mr. Layton's special connection to the Toronto Islands," the report states.

- "For many years, he was the auctioneer for the Island Public School and was active in saving the Island residents' homes."
- "In the summer of 1988, he married Olivia Chow on Algonquin Island, and there they planted a commemorative tree that still stands. He also represented waterfront wards as city councillor for Don River, Broadview-Greenwood, and Toronto Danforth throughout his political career."

McDermott honours local fan with a final sendoff

Canadian tenor John McDermott sings at the funeral of Glen Wideman — a longtime fan and music lover. The pair had a bond that brought the tenor out to pay his respects. RENE JOHNSTON/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

It was Glen Wideman's last concert. With candles lit at the front of a silent chapel on Thursday afternoon, the famed Scottish-Canadian tenor John McDermott filled the room with the quiet, gentle lull of Amazing Grace.

It's the hymn Wideman asked to be played at his funeral, in a letter his daughters found folded in a drawer after he died of cancer on Sunday. He was 74.

But Wideman would have never dreamed the man he adored, whose haunting, simple melodies he raised his family on, would be the one to sing it. A devoted fan of McDermott's, Wideman had been attending his concerts for two decades.

"My dad just loved him. He found solace in his music over the last 20 years," said daughter Kim Severin. "I can't think of a time when he wasn't part of our lives."

At Christmas and for birthdays, there were always tickets to concerts. Listening to McDermott's music became a family affair. When their father was diagnosed with cancer and given six weeks to live, Severin emailed the singer on behalf of herself and her sister, Julie Navarro, desperate to make their father's face light up one last time.

McDermott called Severin on her cell six hours after she sent the email and agreed to come and visit Wideman in the hospice where he would live out his final days. But when Wideman's health declined rapidly, and then he slipped away on Sunday morning, McDermott asked if they would allow him to sing at the funeral.

McDermott wanted to honour a family man who enjoyed old songs and the simple things. "It's people like Glen who really gave me my career," he said.

Wideman grew up in Toronto, where he worked as a proofreader for a printing company. With his wife, Carol, they raised their two girls in Mississauga.

Divided cabinet

Colle doesn't support casino

Liberal MPP Mike Colle does not support his government's push for Toronto to host a waterfront casino complex, confirming rumoured divisions within Premier Dalton McGuinty's caucus on the issue.

"I don't want a big casino in Toronto," the Eglinton-Lawrence MPP told reporters Thursday after attacking a private member's bill that would force municipalities to hold a referendum before agreeing to host a casino.

Colle noted the province is battling a $15-billion deficit. Asked if he thinks a casino is not the way to boost revenues, he said: "Right, there's other ways. But it's not easy, there's no other magic bullet here and the minister of finance has reality to face.... Our caucus is open to examining this whole thing."

He portrayed the McGuinty government as merely planning to open a new casino in the GTA and asking for municipalities' input. But in April, Finance Minister Dwight Duncan made a hard-sell pitch to the city on the benefits of a casino. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Suspect in body-parts case has fled Canada, police say

Details emerge. Victim believed to be missing person police had been searching for

JOE LOFARO
Metro in Ottawa

Montreal police say crime scene evidence suggests a man suspected of dismembering a human body and mailing parts of it from Montreal to Ottawa has fled Canada.

The nationwide arrest warrant for Luka Rocco Magnotta, 29, was expanded Thursday after his photo and description appeared on Interpol's most-wanted list.

Montreal police Cmdr. Ian Lafrenière would not confirm or deny reports that Magnotta may have headed to Europe.

"We do have some evidence that we found on the scene and also that person left a note on a website (describing) how to leave without getting caught," said Lafrenière.

An article on DigitialJournal.com, titled "How to completely disappear and never be found" and penned by someone of the same name as Magnotta, explains how to leave without a trace using a six-step method.

"Cut personal ties with everyone who knows you," the article reads.

It goes on to say, "The most important thing to remember here is to accomplish this slowly: Pull out too abruptly and your friends and associates will become immediately suspicious."

Meanwhile, police are trying to yank videos off of the Internet, which they believe show the suspect committing the murder and other perverse acts on the body.

Police are still investigating the video, but Lafrenière said they "have no reason to doubt its authenticity."

Victim

Police believe the victim is a man in his 30s reported missing several days ago, whose family lives overseas.

- Montreal police Cmdr. Ian Lafrenière said police were still working out the forensic details and were also having trouble contacting the victim's family.

Chasing notoriety

Profilers believe suspect seeks attention

Experts in criminal behaviour say the suspect in the notorious body-parts case has a clear, desperate need: for you to pay attention to him.

One retired criminal profiler says Luka Rocco Magnotta appears to reveal that need on the Internet.

Jim Van Allen, a longtime Ontario Provincial Police criminal profiler, said Thursday that the elaborate cybertrail he left behind shows a need for notoriety.

"I think you're dealing with a person who has a pathological need for attention," said Van Allen, a former police officer.

Montreal criminal psychiatrist Benoit Dassylva says it's possible Magnotta is somewhere monitoring all the attention thrust upon him, and soaking it up. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voyeurism a human impulse: Professor

An online video that may depict the murder and dismemberment of a Montreal man is horrifying, but the written comments below it are just as appalling.

Like many people, Carleton University sociology Prof. Craig McFarlane doesn't plan on watching the video associated with the body-parts investigation in Montreal.

The media attention the video has received can arouse curiosity and someone who normally wouldn't visit a gore site might be tempted to explore it. McFarlane said those people are only engaging in their own natural curiosity to see violence and gore. JOE LOFARO/METRO IN OTTAWA

Quebec tuition talks with students suspended

Gabriel Nadeau-Dubois, spokesperson for CLASSE, centre right, speaks to reporters alongside other student leaders after talks with the province came to a halt in Quebec City on Thursday. JACQUES BOISSINOT/THE CANADIAN PRESS

An attempt to find a solution to the Quebec student crisis has fallen apart, opening up a vast range of potential implications that could be felt from the street to the ballot box.

After four days of negotiation, the provincial government and student groups announced Thursday that their talks had gone nowhere.

There had been speculation that if this latest attempt at negotiation failed, the provincial government might call a snap election and ask Quebec voters to help settle a dispute that has made international news.

Premier Jean Charest said that day will indeed come — but he downplayed its imminence. The government is into the fourth year of its mandate and must head to the polls by late 2013.

"Ultimately there will be an election within 18 months," Charest told reporters. "It will happen in a democratic context that will allow us to state our case on these issues."

In the meantime, both the government and student groups said they were willing to speak again if the other side was ready to make an offer.

The students had issued a mild threat to walk away from the negotiating table early in the day Thursday. But surprisingly, it was Education Minister Michelle Courchesne who announced talks had been suspended because of what she described as an "impasse."

The students later confirmed to reporters that talks had broken off — against their wishes, they said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Students vs. province

- Student groups said the government had offered nothing except for a $35 discount on tuition hikes, and refused to rescind the law limiting protests.
- But Courchesne said a government proposal would have cut the tuition increase by $100 in the first year before returning to $254 in the following six years.

Vancouver police chief apologizes for Boyd shooting

Vancouver's police chief says officers canvassed witnesses after one of their own shot and killed a mentally ill man five years ago, but did not come across the video that has prompted another review of the case.

Chief Jim Chu apologized three times Thursday during a news conference to the family of Paul Boyd, who died in a hail of bullets on Aug. 14, 2007 after police responded to several 911 calls.

Chu said he also called Boyd's family to say sorry for their loss, but the victim's sister, Deborah Boyd, said the chief's apologies ring hollow. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Assad regime blames rebel fighters for Houla massacre

Differing accounts. Witnesses, UN blame pro-Assad gunmen

Syria on Thursday blamed up to 800 rebel fighters for the massacre in central Syria last week that killed more than 100 people, nearly half of them children, in its most comprehensive explanation to date of the bloodshed.

The narrative starkly contradicted accounts of witnesses who blamed "shabiha" or the shadowy gunmen who operate on behalf of President Bashar Assad's regime. The UN also said it had strong suspicions those pro-regime gunmen were responsible for much of the carnage on Friday in a cluster of villages known as Houla.

Facing international outrage over the killings, Damascus launched its own investigation into the deaths and announced that special prayers for the victims would be held at mosques across the country on Friday. The UN chief warned of civil war and pleaded with the regime to stop its attacks.

At a news conference Thursday, Qassem Jamal Suleiman, who headed the government's investigation into the massacre, categorically denied any regime role. He said hundreds of rebel gunmen carried out the slaughter after launching a co-ordinated attack on five security checkpoints.

The aim, he said, was to frame the government and to ignite sectarian strife in Syria.

"Government forces did not enter the area where the massacre occurred, not before the massacre and not after it," he said, adding that the victims were families who refused to oppose the government or carry arms.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Jihad Makdissi said the aim was to create sedition in Syria.

"There are people in dark rooms working night and day to target Syria ... and the way to do it is to ignite civil strife," he told reporters at the same news conference. "They will not succeed."

The Houla massacre was one of the deadliest incidents since the uprising against Assad's hardline regime started in March last year. Activists say about 13,000 have been killed in 15 months.

The area is still under attack. The government focused its shelling Thursday on the Houla village of al-Tibeh.

Verdict in Mubarak trial could lead to unrest

An Egyptian flower vendor stands in front of graffiti of ousted president Hosni Mubarak. AMR NABIL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Guilty or not, Saturday's verdict in Hosni Mubarak's trial will likely deepen Egypt's polarization. Political tensions are already simmering in a heated runoff for president pitting the ousted leader's last prime minister against an Islamist from a group that the old regime repeatedly cracked down.

The 84-year-old Mubarak, the first Arab leader to be tried by his own people, faces charges of complicity in the killing of some 900 protesters during last year's uprising that forced him from power.

If convicted, he could face the death penalty. He also faced separate corruption charges along with his two sons — one-time heir apparent Gamal and wealthy businessman Alaa — and a family friend who is on the run.

"We are so eagerly awaiting the verdict," said George Ishaq, who gained nationwide fame as a vocal critic of Mubarak's rule. "An innocent verdict will trigger a horrific reaction."

His trial mesmerized the nation, with images of him lying on a hospital gurney inside a defendants' cage of iron bars and barbed wire taken by most Egyptians to symbolize both their triumph over tyranny and the humiliation of a dictator who ruled for close to 30 years.

The trial dominated the national conversation and fed tension in an already turbulent transitional period, with many convinced the process was just for show to appease protesters who demanded that Mubarak answers for his actions.

The verdict comes days after officials announced that Mubarak's last prime minister Ahmed Shafiq made it into a presidential runoff slated for June 16-17. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What could happen...

Possible effects of the verdict in the Mubarak trial:

- Guilty verdict. Could endear ex-PM presidential candidate Ahmed Shafiq to more voters.
- Not guilty verdict. Would send protesters to the streets to demand revolutionary justice and undermine Shafiq's chances of winning.

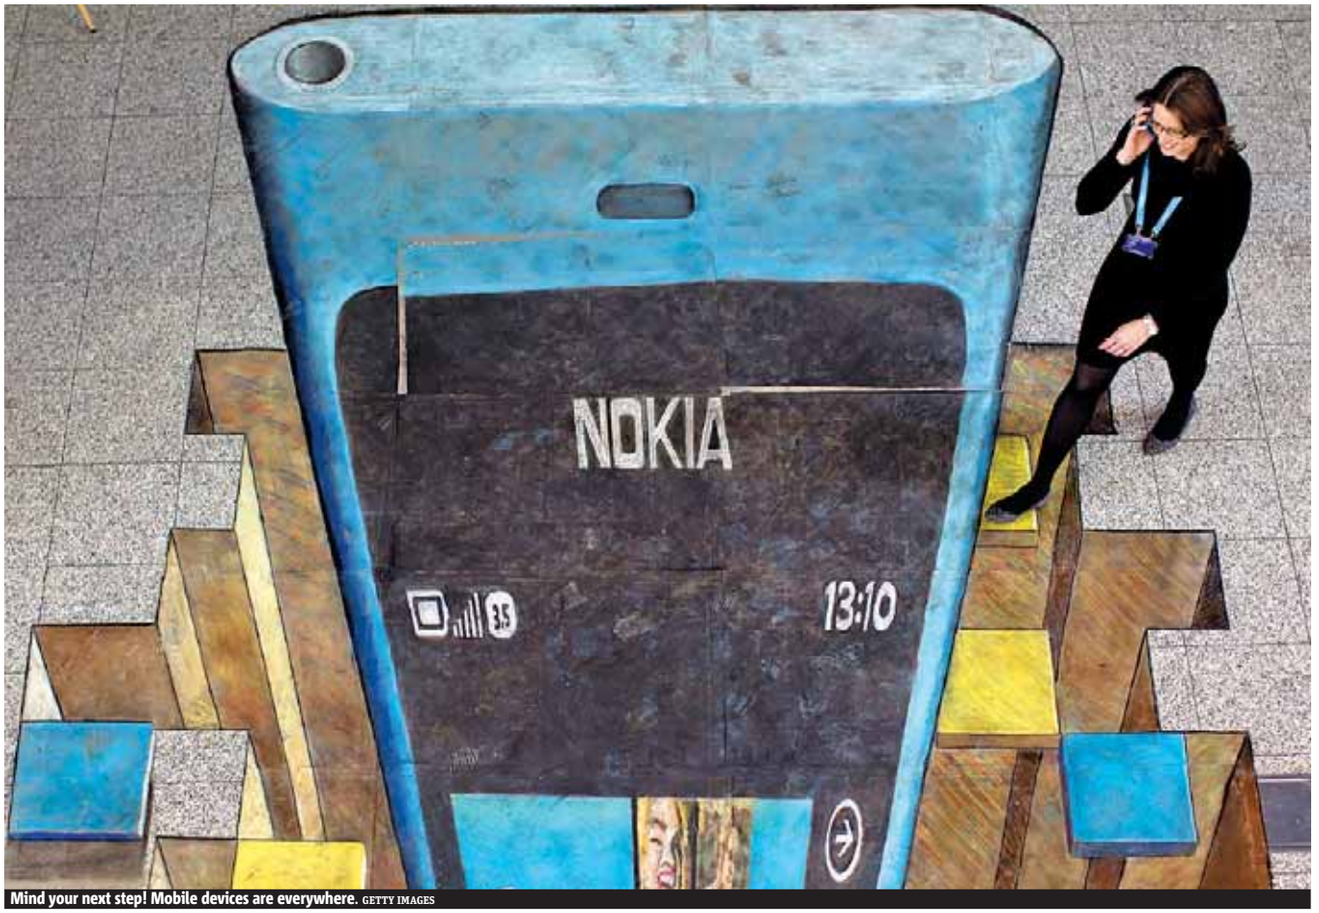
Phones change in a heartbeat — they'll soon be monitoring it, too



Mind your next step! Mobile devices are everywhere. GETTY IMAGES

Wireless world.
One billion people will soon own smartphones, which one tech expert says will be made to track our heart rate

ELISABETH BRAW
Metro World News

Hugo Barra doesn't speak Arabic. But when he travels to the Middle East, he no longer has to rely on guidebook phrases to communicate with locals. Instead he lets his smartphone do the talking: it simultaneously translates for him. Oh, and it's his travel assistant and word processor, too.

Welcome to Smartphone World. Many hundred million consumers already use smartphones, and by 2016, one billion people around the world will own these phones-cum-minicomputers, according to a new report from Forrester Research.

Hugo Barra's phone is an indicator of this future. As Google's director of Android product management, he's spearheading Google's transformation from search company to mobile company.

Hugo Barra ZU WANG/FOR METRO

Quoted

"When we design products, we think about where they'll be used the most number of hours, which is mobile devices. Several years ago that was not the case."
Hugo Barra, Google

"Computing is moving away from the desktop to mobiles and tablets, and we want the computing experience to come with you," he explains. "When we design new products and services we think about where they'll be used the most number of hours, which today is mobile devices. Several years ago that was not the case."

Apple, of course, is leading the mobile revolution with the iPhone and its built-in assistant Siri, who assists users in everything from chores to dental appointments.

The year 2011 was pivotal: smartphones outsold computers. But the desktop isn't dead yet.

"You'll still want to write long documents on your computer," says futurologist Chris Carbone. "But the PC will change, too, perhaps operating by voice command."

And Rohit Talwar, CEO at forecasting firm Fast Future, calls the mobile-only future a fallacy.

"You and I still like somewhere to sit down to work," he says. "We're not very efficient when we work on mobile devices, and they're very virus-prone too. And the way technology is going, devices will get bigger and bigger. Soon we'll have flat-screen monitors on our walls."

In fact, while the desktop will remain our favourite workhorse, mobile phones are set to become Super-Siris.

"Our mobiles will be monitoring our lives and conversations, even suggesting what we should say," predicts Talwar.

"If our heart rate suddenly drops, they'll notice and call an ambulance. We'll even have them as implants, which I believe will happen within five years. In the future our challenge will really be how to make sure technology doesn't take over our lives."

Sharing the market

Nokia, Samsung and other mobile phone makers face a near-death experience as Google, Apple and Microsoft are set to claim 90 per cent of the market, according to a Forrester Research report.

- "The marriage of Android and various Google services makes perfect sense," says Harry McCracken, editor-in-chief of the Technologizer blog. "It's inevitable and similar to what Apple is doing with the iPhone and iCloud. We're moving to a mode in which tech-savvy people have multiple devices — desktop, laptop, phone, maybe tablet — and simply want to get to all their stuff on any gadget in a seamless way. There are only a few companies in a position to do this: Apple, Microsoft and Google."

Nic Dillon, analyst, Ovum

Where are smartphones and tablets growing?
There has been an impressive growth in North America and Europe for the past several years. Today 50 per cent of mobile users have a smartphone. And we'll see a lot more growth over the next several years, especially in the developing world. In these countries smartphones will become people's primary way of accessing the Internet.

What's the next growth market?
The connected living room. Microsoft is set to dominate that market through Xbox. Today Xbox users use it more to access the Internet than to play games. Connected cars are another future growth market.

Wayne Newton gets restraining order on landlord

A judge granted Wayne Newton a restraining order against his landlord Thursday amid stalled plans to turn his lavish Las Vegas estate into a celebrity museum.

Clark County District Court Judge Elizabeth Gonzalez ruled that developer Steve Kennedy must stay 50 feet away from the Newton family and their home, effectively putting the brakes on construction to turn Newton's Casa de Shenandoah estate into a tourist attraction. Newton told reporters after Thursday's hearing that he regretted entering into the deal with Kennedy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SpaceX completes mission for NASA

The SpaceX Dragon capsule parachuted into the Pacific on Thursday to conclude the first private delivery to the International Space Station and inaugurate NASA's new approach to exploration.

The unmanned supply ship scored a bull's-eye with its arrival, splashing down into the ocean about 800 kilometres off Mexico's Baja Penninsula. A fleet of recovery ships quickly moved in to pull the capsule aboard a barge for towing.

It was the first time since the shuttles stopped flying last summer that NASA got back a big load from the space station, in this case more than 450 kilograms of experiments and equipment. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oregon rolls out tsunami drill

Several thousand Oregon Coast residents on alert after last year's devastating earthquake in Japan took part in their first tsunami evacuation drill Thursday.

Unlike a real tsunami, there were no sirens and no tremors from a massive offshore earthquake.

When the tsunami from the Japan earthquake reached the U.S. last year, coastal residents had hours to prepare, and severe damage was limited to harbours.

The much bigger threat here would be a potential megaquake from the Cascadia Subduction Zone, where two plates of the Earth's crust butt together miles off the coast THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tense competition. Mignon Tsai of Abbotsford and Jennifer Mong of St. John's tripped up during semifinal action

Two Canadians were eliminated on Thursday from the Scripps National Spelling Bee.

Twelve-year-old Mignon Tsai of Abbotsford, B.C., was tripped up by the word "macropodid" during the nail-biter of a semifinal.

In the next round, Jennifer Mong of St. John's — after nailing the word "lymphopoiesis" earlier in the day — flubbed the spelling of "vellon" by adding an "e" on the end, concluding her run at the famous spelling bee.

The girls were among 50 competitors to make it to the semifinals following two days of often tense competition that saw spelling-bee officials challenge them with progressively more difficult words as the contest proceeded.

Many of those words, with origins in foreign languages, would confound adult Mensa members, and yet most of the schoolchildren, including Tsai and Mong, approached the microphone with poise, confidence — and no small amount of courage amid the glare of television cameras and a time limit to spell their words.

The winner of this year's spelling bee, 14-year-old Snighdha Nandipati of San Diego, Calif., will take home more than $40,000 US in cash and scholarship money.

This year's competition included schoolkids not just from the U.S. and Canada, but from the Bahamas, China, Ghana, Jamaica, Japan, New Zealand and South Korea. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some feverish origami folding for Guiness world record

Two girls sit among an origami assemblage of water lilies in the central Aristotelous Square in the northern Greek city of Thessaloniki on Thursday. Car accident. U.S. border patrol rescues boy on Mexican side of fence

A four-year-old boy injured in a car crash in Mexico was lifted over a fence to Border Patrol agents who performed life-saving measures, authorities said.

The American boy was visiting relatives in Jacume, Mexico, a remote mountain village about 120 kilometres east of San Diego, when he was struck by a car Monday night, said Border Patrol spokesman Jerry Conlin. The boy was having trouble breathing and had blood and mucus in his mouth.

Border Patrol agents put a tube in the boy's nose to allow him to breathe, Conlin said Thursday. The boy, whose name was not released, was flown to a hospital and was in stable condition. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gay marriage. Obama faces Minnesota litmus test on same-sex ban

The political impact of U.S. President Barack Obama's support for gay marriage will be tested this fall in Minnesota, where opponents of a proposed gay marriage ban are hoping the president's enduring popularity here will help persuade skeptical Democrats to vote it down.

Obama's trip to Minneapolis on Friday comes three weeks after he announced his full support for the right of same-sex couples to wed, and it's his first trip since then to a state that will definitely have a gay marriage ban on the November ballot. Voters in Washington, Maine and Maryland — three other states Obama won in 2008 — are expected to consider similar measures. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Suu Kyi. Speaks out for Myanmar's economic migrants while abroad

Long a fighter against oppression inside Myanmar, Aung San Suu Kyi has used her first foreign trip in 24 years to fight for her countrymen suffering abroad — millions of economic migrants unable to work at home but vulnerable to exploitation elsewhere.

On Thursday, she pressed her concerns about the millions of Myanmar migrants living in Thailand in a meeting with the country's deputy prime minister.

And for a second straight day, she addressed throngs of migrants in Mahachai, a town southwest of Bangkok that hosts more migrants from Myanmar than any other place in Thailand. "She can't force the Thai government to do anything, but she can speak (out)," said a man who lost his hand in a shoe factory. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hero saves three lives in horrific Seattle shootings

Gunman kills five, then self. Man throws stools at crazed shooter enabling three people to escape

Someone inside an artsy cafe where a gunman opened fire threw stools at the assailant during a shooting rampage police described as "callous, horrific and cold."

Throwing the stools allowed others to run to safety.

Ian Lee Stawicki was armed with two .45-calibre handguns and began shooting Wednesday morning at Cafe Racer, killing four people. Police said he fled and later killed a female motorist, taking off with her SUV.

Stawicki later killed himself as police closed in.

Police said more could have been injured or even killed at the cafe were it not for the actions of the man, whom they did not identify.

They did not say whether he was a patron or an employee.

Stacy Davis cries on Thursday as she sits near a memorial to those killed in Seattle. ELAINE THOMPSON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The hero picked up a stool and threw it at the suspect. Hit him. Picked up another stool, as the suspect is shooting and now pointing (a gun) at him and hits him with another stool," Assistant Chief Jim Pugel said.

"During that time, two or possibly three people made their escape," he said, adding, "He saved three lives."

The slayings further frayed nerves in an already jittery city that has seen 21 homicides so far this year, as many as Seattle had in all of 2011.

"In my almost 30 years in this department, I've never seen anything more callous, horrific and cold," Deputy Chief Nick Metz said at a Thursday news conference.

Stawicki had bounced around serving as a roadie for bands and helping his mother garden. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A father's apology

"I'm so sorry. It sounds so trite, that I feel their grief. ... I just hope they understand he wasn't a monster out to kill."

Pakistan. Militant group denies links to doctor who helped U.S. hunt bin Laden

A Pakistani militant group has denied any links with the doctor who helped the U.S. track down Osama bin Laden, threatening Thursday to kill him for working with the Americans.

The statement by Lashkar-e-Islam was the latest twist in the case of Shakil Afridi, whose plight has angered Washington and opened up another crack in relations with Islamabad.

Afridi ran a vaccination campaign on behalf of the CIA as a way of collecting blood samples from bin Laden's family in their house in northwest Pakistan. Afridi was arrested soon after the May 2, 2011 American raid that killed the al-Qaida leader. Last week he was sentenced to 33 years in prison.

On Wednesday, the court released its written verdict, which found Afridi guilty of assisting Lashkar-e-Islam, a brutal militant and criminal gang.

You might be Overpaying for Car Insurance

There are ways to save without impacting coverage

Each insurance company charges a different rate to insure the same driver with the same exact coverage – and these rates vary considerably. By not shopping around for car insurance, you could be paying hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars more than you should. Insurers use their own claims experience to determine their rates and each company will have a different history with each driving profile and car combination. This could mean that you are overpaying for car insurance – and with so many insurance companies, odds are you may not be currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile.

The car you drive, where you live, where you drive, and your driving record are all factors that may affect your insurance rate. While most of these items are under your control, others such as the insurance company's experience and corresponding rates are not. One insurance company may charge more for being insured in your postal code, while others may charge more for insuring sport cars. Understanding all of these considerations and knowing that each insurance company charges different rates will help you find the best car insurance rate that suits your needs.

The best way to save on your car insurance is to compare your insurance rate to those offered by other companies. But it can be extremely time consuming to compare the rates individually and brokers only offer rates from 4 to 5 different companies. Web sites like InsuranceHotline.com make it easy to compare your rate against the lowest available rates within their network of over 30 insurance companies.

It's not just about saving you money. Wait, it is.

Visit InsuranceHotline.com today and experience a fast, free, and easy service that works for your wallet.

Nigeria. German hostage killed during home raid

Kidnappers stabbed a captive German engineer to death Thursday as soldiers unaware of the hostage's presence raided a home in northern Nigeria, officials said, five months after his abduction by proclaimed al-Qaida-linked terrorists.

The killing of Edgar Fritz Raupach came as authorities acknowledged the kidnapping of an Italian working for a construction company, part of an increasing number of abductions targeting expatriates working in Nigeria's north and central regions.

Soldiers launched a raid Thursday morning in Kano, the northern city where gunmen abducted Raupach on Jan. 26 following a major terrorist attack there that killed at least 185 people. The mission targeted a home that soldiers suspected held "an ongoing meeting of senior commanders of the terrorist element," military spokesman Lt. Iweah Ikedichi said in a statement.

"On sighting the security forces, the terrorist element opened fire and threw (explosives)," the statement read. "The security forces responded immediately, resulting in a gun battle that lasted for about 30 minutes."

Soldiers killed five suspected terrorists in the firefight, Ikedichi said. It was only later while searching the house that soldiers discovered Raupach's handcuffed corpse, he said.

A security official who later spoke to The Associated Press said the kidnappers stabbed Raupach to death and tried to escape. The official spoke on condition of anonymity since the information was not to be made public. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Captors' demand

- The kidnappers, part of a group known by the acronym AQIM, demanded that German officials release Filiz Gelowicz, a German woman convicted last year of supporting a foreign terrorist network.
- German officials released Gelowicz from prison in late April on probation after she served two-thirds of her sentence.

The villagers were arrested when they tried to rebuild their homes on the land where their old houses were demolished by Chinese developers, and they were sentenced each to two-and-a-half years in prison by Phnom Penh municipality court on May 24. Ohio. Judge rejects challenge of hate-crime law by Amish accused

The religious beliefs of victims of alleged beard- and hair-cutting attacks in Ohio Amish country are what matters in the case, not those of the defendants, a U.S. federal judge ruled Thursday in rejecting the defendants' challenges of the federal hate-crimes law.

The defendants, who include 16 members of an eastern Ohio breakaway Amish group, argued the alleged attacks last fall weren't hate crimes but internal church disciplinary matters not involving anti-Amish bias. The defendants also argued that the federal hate-crime law violates their First Amendment rights of religious expression.

U.S. District Court Judge Dan Polster said the defendants' use of the First Amendment claim was offensive, given that the Constitution allows the defendants "to maintain their religious beliefs and practices, which are so different from the beliefs and practices of most Americans."

A feud over church discipline allegedly led to attacks in which the beards and hair of men and hair of women were cut, an act considered deeply offensive in Amish culture.

U.S. House fails to approve ban on abortions

Sex selection. The bill, if passed, would have made it a federal crime to abort a fetus based on gender

The U.S. House on Thursday fell short in an effort to ban abortions based on the sex of the fetus as Republicans and Democrats made an election-year appeal for women's votes.

The legislation would have made it a federal crime to perform or force a woman to undergo a sex-based abortion, a practice most common in some Asian countries where families wanting sons abort female fetuses.

It was a rare social issue to reach the House floor in a year when the economy has dominated the political conversation, and Republicans, besieged by Democratic claims that they are waging a war on women, struck back by trying to depict the vote as a women's rights issue.

"It is violence against women," said Rep. Chris Smith, a Republican, of abortions of female fetuses. "This is the real war on women."

The White House, most Democrats, abortion rights groups and some Asian-American organizations opposed the bill, saying it could lead to racial profiling of Asian-American women and subject doctors who do not report suspected sex-selection abortions to criminal charges.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The vote

- The bill had little chance of becoming law. The Democratic-controlled Senate would likely have ignored it, and the House brought it up under a procedure requiring a two-thirds majority for passage. The vote was 246-168 — 30 votes short of that majority. Twenty Democrats voted for it, while seven Republicans opposed it.

Marriage act discriminates against gay couples: Court

A U.S. appeals court Thursday declared that the federal Defence of Marriage Act unconstitutionally denies federal benefits to married gay couples, a groundbreaking ruling all but certain to wind up before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The unanimous ruling said the 1996 law that defines marriage as a union between a man and a woman discriminates against gay couples because it doesn't give them the same rights and privileges as heterosexual couples.

The three-judge panel of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals wasn't asked to address whether gay couples have a constitutional right to marry.

The panel also didn't rule on the law's other politically combustible provision, which said states without same-sex marriage cannot be forced to recognize gay unions performed in states where it's legal.

The 1st Circuit said its ruling wouldn't be enforced until the U.S. Supreme Court decides the case, meaning that same-sex married couples will not be eligible to receive the economic benefits denied by the law until the high court rules.

That's because the ruling only applies to states within the circuit, including Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Puerto Rico. Only the Supreme Court has the final say in deciding whether a law passed by Congress is unconstitutional.

Carbon dioxide levels the highest they've ever been

Air quality. Before the industrial age, CO_2 levels were around 275 parts per million — now that number is closer to 400 ppm on average

The world's air has reached what scientists call a troubling new milestone for carbon dioxide, the main global warming pollutant.

Monitoring stations across the Arctic this spring are measuring more than 400 parts per million of the heat-trapping gas in the atmosphere. The number isn't quite a surprise, because it's been rising at an accelerating pace. Years ago, it passed the 350 ppm mark that many scientists say is the highest safe level for carbon dioxide. It now stands globally at 395.

So far only the Arctic has reached the 400 level, but the rest of the world will follow soon.

Quoted:

"It's just a reminder to everybody that we haven't fixed this, and we're still in trouble."

Jim Butler, global monitoring director at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Earth System Research Lab

Carbon dioxide is the chief greenhouse gas and stays in the atmosphere for 100 years. Some carbon dioxide is natural, mainly from decomposing dead plants and animals. Before the Industrial Age, levels were around 275 parts per million.

For more than 60 years, readings have been in the 300s, except in urban areas, where levels are skewed. The burning of fossil fuels, such as coal for electricity and oil for gasoline, has caused the overwhelming bulk of the man-made increase in carbon in the air, scientists say.

It's been at least 800,000 years — probably more — since Earth saw carbon dioxide levels in the 400s, Butler and other climate scientists said. Until now.

Readings are coming in at 400 and higher all over the Arctic. They've been recorded in Alaska, Greenland, Norway, Iceland and even Mongolia. But levels change with the seasons and will drop a bit in the summer, when plants suck up carbon dioxide, NOAA scientists said.

Globally, the average carbon dioxide level is about 395 parts per million but will pass the 400 mark within a few years, scientists said.

The Arctic is the leading indicator in global warming, both in carbon dioxide in the air and effects, said Pieter Tans, a senior NOAA scientist. "This is the first time the entire Arctic is that high," he said. Tans called reaching the 400 number "depressing," and Butler said it was "a troubling milestone."

L.A.'s plastic bag ban may push rest of U.S. to follow suit

Although it seems as if the single-use plastic grocery bag has been around forever, it wasn't until 1977 that it was introduced to U.S. supermarkets.

Now, with Los Angeles taking the first step toward joining nearly four dozen other California municipalities in outlawing them, the humble polyethylene bag may be headed for the trash heap of history. San Francisco already bans the bag. So do San Jose, Long Beach, Berkeley and Malibu.

But L.A., with nearly four million residents, goes through an estimated 2.7 billion plastic grocery bags a year, according to city officials, and environmentalists believe a ban will have a huge impact and could even influence the rest of the U.S. to follow suit.

"This is a gateway for sustainability," said Leslie Tamminen of the Clean Seas Coalition."This is meant to change consumer behaviour and expand consumer consciousness."

Researchers make spinal cord injury breakthrough

Walking again. Swiss scientists find success by using spinal nerve stimulation technique on rats and people

Scientists are working on treatments to help people with spinal cord injuries walk. Now there's a striking new demonstration of how one approach might work: Spinal nerve stimulation helped rats in a Swiss lab overcome paralysis to walk and climb stairs.

That may sound impressive, but similar progress has been made in people, too. The difference this time is the particular technique used.

In the new experiment, reported in Friday's issue of the journal Science, researchers stimulated spinal nerve circuits and used physical training. The stimulation was electrical current from implanted electrodes plus injections of a chemical mix.

To do the training, the rats were placed in a harness so that only their hind legs reached the ground. Then they were placed on a treadmill, which produced only reflexive stepping, and on stationary ground, where they had to choose to make their legs move if they wanted to reach a piece of chocolate.

They took their first voluntary steps about two to three weeks after the training began, the researchers said. The rats still needed the harness later to keep their balance.

A rat in a special harness walks voluntarily after rehabilitation in a laboratory in Switzerland. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The treatment produced an extensive rewiring in the brain and spinal cord, and the lead researcher said that more than 100 rats have regained walking ability to varying degrees.

"This kind of approach will not cure spinal cord injury" but it might someday help some patients recover more ability to move around, said lead researcher Gregoire Courtine.

Dr. John McDonald, of the Krieger Institute, said the new paper would spur great interest among spinal cord researchers, in part because the techniques it used could be readily applied to people. The electrical stimulation could be given through the skin rather than from implanted electrodes, he said.

But he and W. Dalton Dietrich, scientific director of the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis at the University of Miami, noted that the rats had been given a spinal injury that differs from what is normally seen in people, so more studies are needed. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Head-on hit. Galactic crash in cards for Earth

Don't worry about when the world as we know it might end. NASA has calculated that our entire Milky Way galaxy will crash into a neighbouring galaxy with a head-on hit — in four billion years.

Astronomers in a Thursday NASA news conference announced that observations from the Hubble Space Telescope detail a long-anticipated galactic smash-up. Astronomers had seen the Andromeda galaxy coming at us, but thought there was a chance that its sideways motion would make it miss or graze the Milky Way. Hubble readings say there's no chance of that.

Scientists say the sun and Earth should easily survive the galactic merger, but likely will be in a different place in the cosmos. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Watercraft-maker preparing to move assembly to Mexico

Ski-Doo maker. 500 employees of Quebec plant will be affected when Bombardier makes the move over next 18 to 36 months

Bombardier Recreational Products Inc. says 500 Quebec employees will be affected by a decision to switch watercraft assembly to Mexico.

The move will take place over the next 18 to 36 months, the company said in a statement released Thursday.

The 500 employees affected at the Valcourt plant will be presented with options including retirement packages or positions within or outside of the company.

The privately held company said existing production capacity in Mexico will be expanded by transferring engines currently being manufactured in Juarez to a new plant.

The new facility is where the assembly of the watercraft will take place.

"Building a global multi-market business is an ongoing process," company president Jose Boisjoli said in the statement.

"To remain a market leader, BRP needs to constantly challenge itself and adapt to change. This is not the first time that we change things at BRP, nor will it be the last.

"While we remain very much committed to our heritage and roots in Valcourt, we must become more flexible to leverage our growth opportunities."

Bombardier Recreational Products Inc. designs, develops, manufactures and distributes motorized recreational vehicles.

Its brands include Ski-Doo snowmobiles and Sea-Doo watercraft and boats.

It employs more than 6,000 people worldwide.

Outsourcing

Bombardier Recreational Products will also assign North American distribution of its parts, accessories and clothing to a logistics provider.

- The company said the moves will enable it to become more competitive and free up space on the main assembly line in Valcourt, Que., to increase production of its "roadster-type" vehicles.

YOUR (BARBER'S) FIRED

THE LIST
Paul Sullivan
Metro

The world is having a very stressful week. All kinds of nerve-racking stuff going on, starting with:

1 Mr. Dahmer goes to Ottawa? Gay-porn star Luka Rocco Magnotta allegedly tortures kittens, slices up a naked man and sends the body parts in the mail to various places, including Parliament Hill. Yikes.

2 National shame. It's another Stanley Cup and, once again, no Canadian teams are involved. So, as we stand with our noses pressed to the glass, we ask: Who is Canada's team? The Los Angeles Kings or the New Joisey Devils?

3 Like, oops. On network TV, Kathie Lee Gifford congratulates Martin Short for his long, happy marriage. The only problem is, his wife died two years ago. Then she apologizes on Twitter, albeit to the wrong Twitter handle.

4 What's your kid doing today? A 16-year-old kid in Germany has solved a 300-year-old math puzzle that stumped Isaac Newton and everyone else since. Thanks to Shouryya Ray, there is now a way to calculate the path of a projectile under gravity and subject to air resistance. Well, it kept me up at night.

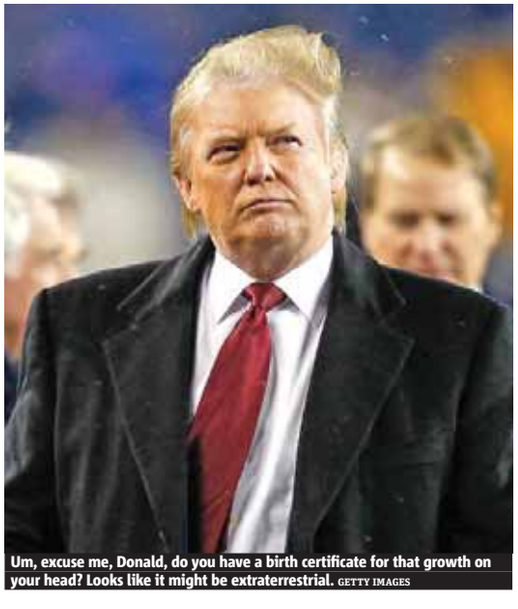
5 God saves the Queen, in perpetuity. Her Majesty's a pretty nice woman, and she'll be floating down the Thames in a barge on Sunday to mark the 60th year of her reign over us. No word on whether the corgis will follow in the royal dinghy.

6 Hair-brained theme. Donald Trump won't let it go. He still says Barack Obama wasn't born in the U.S., even though the president has released his detailed Hawaiian birth certificate. The question remains: What planet is The Donald from? And why doesn't it have decent barbers?

7 Speaking of outer space. The first private space flight is a success as the SpaceX Dragon splashes down in the Pacific. Next mission: Send The Donald back to Mars.

8 A New York-nanny state of mind. N.Y.C. Mayor Michael Bloomberg wants to ban any sugary drinks over 16 ounces across the five boroughs, because they're bad for you. Using that logic, he should ban Donald Trump. He's fired.

9 This just in: The European Union appears to be crumbling before our eyes. Spain, Italy, Greece and Ireland are seriously considering abandoning the euro and restoring the peseta, lira, drachma and punt, respectively. The Irish, at least, have it right.



Um, excuse me, Donald, do you have a birth certificate for that growth on your head? Looks like it might be extraterrestrial. GETTY IMAGES

Bullfighting

Matador (El Juli) on the horns

This was a scary moment for one of Spain's most celebrated bullfighters. Julian (El Juli) Lopez was thrown in the air and then gored in the stomach by a bull at a festival in the town of Aranjuez this week. After losing consciousness, Lopez returned to finish the fight and was carried off at the finish by spectators.

- Barcelona. Represents the modern distaste for bloodsports — it banned bullfighting in 2010.

The ringmaster, from the age of 9

Lopez, 29, has had a remarkable career. He was training with bulls at the age of nine and fought in Mexico at 14 to avoid Spain's law against underage matadors. He became the highest-paid bullfighter in history at 17 and has flourished since. Footage of his fights have appeared in Shakira's videos.

Comeback

"I took a beating but I'm fine, thanks for all your support it has made me better."

Matador Julian Lopez reassures his supporters on Twitter.
This was not El Juli's first scare in the bullring and he has become known for his swift recoveries. In 2010 he was hospitalized after being gored in the scrotum.

Kristen Stewart is more tomboy than fierce rebel queen in Snow White and the Huntsman. HANDOUT

Famous fairy tale goes goth

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Snow White and The Huntsman. Charlize Theron's shrieking performance usurps Kristen Stewart's turn as Snow White

Richard: Chris, this movie plays like the love child of the Grimm Brothers and The Hobbit. It is dark in tone and in look with just a few hi ho ho's provided by the Seven Dwarfs. That'll be my last bad Snow White joke, I promise. The first hour is a gothic fairy tale, the second hour more an action movie, but through it all Theron's bug-eyed Grand Guiginol performance remains constant. Was she too over the top, or just over the top?

Chris: One scream of rage would have been over the top. By the time she turned into a melting puddle of dying, tar-soaked crows, I realized that both the dark tone of the film and Charlize's shrieking vampire queen performance were more Hammer Horror than Walt Disney... and I was in deep, of course. But what did you think of Stewart's Snow White?

RC: K Stew is the movie's big draw, marquee wise, and while she holds down the fort, I found that unless she was on horseback, or staring down a troll, I wasn't that interested in her performance. The talky bits aren't nearly as interesting as the yelling bits (thanks to Charlize's unhinged performance) or the action sequences. Unfortunately, she is saddled with most of the dialogue, and it is the last interesting thing about the movie.

CA: Stewart was a fantastic Joan Jett. Not so much earth goddess/warrior queen but whatever, I forgave her slight, tomboyish presence when so many operatic visuals were exploding around her. Strangely, however, I found that some of my favourite moments in the film were the quiet ones; the sequences of technicolour fairy forests and character moments where — alarmingly — you actually empathized with Theron's soul-sucking monster. What do you think Stewart's TWI-hard fanbase will think?

RC: She couldn't muster the fanpires for The Runaways but this time around will be different, I think. Her version of Snow White has much in common with the elements that appeal to the Twilight fans. There's no werewolves or vampires, but there is true love, fantasy and even the sweeping crane landscape shots are reminiscent of her best-known films.

CA: Well, she certainly has a better shot at pleasing her fanbase with this lush gothic fantasy than her sparkly paramour Pattinson does getting a five-minute prostate exam in Cronenberg's Cosmopolis, that's for sure.... but we'll save that for another day.

Synopsis

In this twist on a familiar fairy tale, Charlize Theron is Ravenna, an evil queen so obsessed with being the fairest in the land she condemns the dead king's lovely daughter, Snow White (Kristen Stewart), to a lifetime of solitude and captivity. When the queen's mirror tells her that Ms. White will one day reclaim the throne, Ravenna does what any evil monarch would do. She decides to eat Snow's still beating heart, thereby ensuring immortality and the throne. Chris Alexander sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

Starbuck creators win prize

The two creators of Quebec's fertility comedy Starbuck have each won a $20,000 prize from Telefilm Canada. On Wednesday, director Ken Scott and his co-writer Martin Petit landed the 2011 Guichet d'Or award. The annual honour goes to the Canuck director and writer of a Canadian French-language feature film with the highest-grossing domestic box-office sales during the previous year. In 2011, Starbuck took in more than $3.5 million at the Canadian box office, according to Telefilm Canada. Steven Spielberg's DreamWorks Studios announced last month it's revamping the francophone film with a new script set in New York.

Comedy/Horror

Piranha 3DD

Director. John Gulager

Stars. Danielle Panabaker, David Hasselhoff, Matt Bush

To be honest, Piranha 3DD doesn't take itself very seriously. And so I won't be excoriating some disparaging critical diagnosis or justifying any hopeful merit (for the record there are no merits). Just know that when the producers pitched this low-brow money-grab about a waterpark overrun with flesh-eating fish (need I say more?), they likely only had three words for potential investors: blood, boobs and 3D.

In the Family

Director. Patrick Wang

Stars. Patrick Wang, Trevor St. John, Sebastian Banes

Writer/director/producer Patrick Wang also stars in In the Family, his subtle but incredibly moving first feature film. Cody (St. John) and Joey (Wang) have raised Cody's biological son, Chip (Banes), together since he was a baby. But when Cody is killed in a car accident, Joey learns that Cody's six-year-old will names Cody's sister as Chip's legal guardian. In the Family follows Joey as he attempts to regain custody of his son and as he learns what it really means to be "family."

We Have a Pope

Director. Nanni Moretti

Stars. Nanni Moretti, Michel Piccoli

Italian auteur (and Cannes Film Fest jury president) Nanni Moretti's intriguing comedy We Have a Pope explores the notion of a pontiff going rogue with an anxiety attack after gaining his newly appointed status. While the rambling story may meander at times, French acting legend Michel Piccoli gives the protagonist a heavenly presence definitely worth checking out.

Moonrise Kingdom

Director. Wes Anderson

Stars. Jared Gilman, Bruce Willis, Edward Norton

Wes Anderson's films aren't everyone's cup of tea. And with Moonrise Kingdom, the quirky auteur (The Royal Tenenbaums) doesn't bow to box-office pressure over originality either. Set in 1965, two adolescents fall in love and runaway on a small island on the eve of a great storm. While Anderson won't likely recruit many new fans, there's no denying his evocative, meticulous style, which helps make this film a fascinating contemporary fable.

Comedy/Drama

A Beginner's Guide to Endings

Director. Jonathan Sobol

Stars. Harvey Keitel, Scott Caan

If A Beginner's Guide to Endings didn't feel so contrived from its fabricated foundation, it might have been a cool film. A comic look at three distinct brothers who struggle with imminent mortality alongside their no-good gambling dad (Harvey Keitel), the trio attempt their own bucket lists with slightly predictable results. Jonathan Sobol definitely has some set skills, but the accomplished cast seems to enjoy the material more than the audience.

Comedy/Drama

The Intouchables

Director. Olivier Nakache

Stars. François Cluzet, Omar Sy Anne Le Ny

A massive box-office hit in its native France, The Intouchables mines a fascinating true-life story about a wealthy quadriplegic's friendship with his caregiver for slick populist uplift: it's a tear-jerking, subtitled version of The Odd Couple. Omar Sy and Francois Cluzet give polished performances in the leads, but the film is sentimental and manipulative — the fact that it is proudly and unashamedly so doesn't make it any less enervating.

Crooked Arrows

Director. Steve Rash

Stars. Brandon Routh, Michael Hudson, Gil Birmingham

Sports movies by definition have a predetermined ending — the underdog team wins despite the odds, or loses the game, but wins on moral grounds. Despite this, Hollywood continues to churn the things out like they were Avengers' solo films. Crooked Arrows in no way deviates from this pattern — it literally lifts its plot points from the Mighty Ducks, replacing inner city kids playing hockey with first-nations kids playing lacrosse.

IAN GORMELY

Horror

Lovely Molly

Director. Eduardo Sanchez

Stars. Gretchen Lodge, Johnny Lewis

Lovely Molly has its share of tense moments, but this chiller about a woman literally haunted by her past is too familiar. It's not shocking that scenes are filmed through the stylistically exhausted point-of-view of Molly's camcorder, since filmmaker Sanchez initiated the trend with The Blair Witch Project, but shaky shots and big gaps of logic don't solicit any sensible scares.

When it comes to Prometheus, Ridley Scott fights the geek fight

Prop war. Director talks about arguing over the specifics of space helmets and shoe laces for sci-fi horror flick

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Prometheus opens in theatres next Friday. HANDOUT

You would think that a director of Ridley Scott's stature would find it easier to get what he wants, especially when he's returning to his sci-fi horror roots with Prometheus. But you'd be wrong. As details of the technology within the film's story began to take shape, Scott admits he found himself going to the mat on more than one occasion.

"You think about everything, down to the shoe laces," Scott says. "We even had a big argument about the globular helmets. I was certain that I wanted the fully spherical glass helmet. If I'm in 2083 and I'm going into space, why would I design a helmet that has blind spots?"

And androids, by then, will apparently be indistinguishable from humans. But Scott, who's no stranger to androids thanks to the original Alien, wanted to approach the subject with care. "What was important was the story. There's nothing new about an android. That idea is 100 years old," he says, explaining how this film's android, played by Michael Fassbender, is deployed. "So then, embrace what it is. By embracing it, he becomes that much more interesting because he isn't just part of the ship. He also becomes extremely useful during the story, as it evolves."

Getting technical

Fassbender on androids

A major component of the Alien universe — and of the viral marketing campaign leading up to Prometheus — are the incredibly lifelike android characters. This time out, X-Men: First Class star Michael Fassbender takes on the job as David, which he found to be an interesting challenge. "You want to play with as many of those human traits as possible. You're essentially trying to build a computer that has a physicality to it," he says.

All that Heaven will allow

The Walkmen. Metro chats to the band's singer about their latest release

PAT HEALY
scene@metronews.ca

Hamilton Leithauser needs a jumpstart. The singer for the Walkmen says his 2000 Ford Escape is an otherwise reliable vehicle, but he left his hazard lights on while visiting a friend and the battery died.

But if Heaven — the new Walkmen album that came out on May 29 — does as well as it seems like it was designed to do, he might not have to be concerned about his Ford for much longer. Beginning as a buzz band that appeared to be unwillingly lumped in with NYC's leather-clad class of 2002, the band have persevered and watched their cult of believers expand with each of their six original releases. With Heaven, the band seems to be reaching for something more accessible, something that could even lead to Leithauser buying a rock star car like a Bentley.

The last time we spoke we talked about who the best contemporary band in America was. You said it would be a different world if the Walkmen were the biggest contemporary American band.

Now that's true.

But you guys definitely seem like you're aiming for something big with this album.

I think we were happy to make a big record, which is not something we always want to do. By "big" I mean that I hope it's accessible and I hope that people will like it, but I mean more that it's got big songs and big dynamics and big sounds, and that it's really bombastic. But that wasn't even the plan.

Hamilton Leithauser, left, and Walter Martin of the Walkmen perform at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in May of this year. GETTY IMAGES

How often does that happen with you guys?

Every time.

Really?

Well, every time we've tried to plan, it just ends up pigeonholing us. We just have such trouble writing songs that you sort of take what you can get when you like it. I mean, you work and work and work, but when you say, 'OK, we're going to write all slow songs,' then that's just another limitation that makes it harder. It's hard enough.

This is the first album where you've ever featured a song where it's just your voice and a guitar. ...

Yeah. We were doing that live for a while and that was kind of weird because everybody just walks off the stage and I'm just up there alone. I mean, we're just trying for dynamics. We have the one, Line By Line, which is me and Paul. It's nice to try to vary it up when we can.

Summer albums

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross
scene@metronews.ca

We're now well into the summer album release season. Here's what's on the horizon this month:

Insane Clown Posse/The Mighty Death Pop! (Out now): The Juggalos will be pleased with what Violent J and Shaggy 2 Dope have turned in for their 12th album. Still no clue insight into how magnets work, however.

Public Image, Ltd/This Is PiL (Out now): Johnny Lydon's crew has just released their first album in 20 years and it's a DIY effort on their own label. Good for the contrarian in all of us.

Beach Boys/That's Why God Made the Radio (Tuesday): This is album 29 and coincides with the band's 50th anniversary. It's the first album with original material in 20 years. Brian Wilson says he was going for a Pet Sounds sound for the record.

Japandroids/Celebration Rock (Tuesday): Will Vancouver's Brian King and David Prowse be 2012's break-out two-piece act? The indie crowds have been all over the first single, The House That Heaven Built.

Rush/Clockwork Angels (June 12): Finally! The first song from this album was released on June 1, 2010. Another track, BU2B, was a nightly part of the set list on the last Rush tour. Bonus feature: Sci-fi novelist Kevin J. Anderson is turning the album into a book involving steampunk, anarchists, alchemy and The Watchmaker who controls everything.

Wintersleep/Hello Hum (June 12): There's much anticipation about the Halifax band's fifth album. Hey, Paul McCartney is a fan.

Smashing Pumpkins/Oceania (June 19): After attempting and abandoning a new way of releasing music with his Teargarden by Kaleidyscope project, Billy Corgan returns to a traditional album. But he says that Oceania is really "an album within an album." What?

Fiona Apple/The Idler Wheel is Wiser than the Driver of the Screw, and Whipping Cords Will Serve You More Than Ropes Will Ever Do (June 26): Yes, that's what it's called. At least the title is shorter than her 1999 album. Look it up.

Linkin Park/Living Things (June 26): Well more a year in the making, their fifth album is said to deliver more of what's helped them sell 50 million records so far.

The Offspring/Days Go By (June 26): After a four- year break the Offspring are back with a Bob Rock-produced record. Love the Dr. Strangelove closer: Slim Pickens Does the Right Thing and Rides the Bomb to Hell.

Tron: Uprising. Elijah Wood steps into a dangerous virtual world in new Disney live action TV series

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Elijah Wood is jumping feet first into the world of animated series television with Tron: Uprising, a new series that takes place in the time between 1982's Tron and 2010's Tron: Legacy. Of course, it's not necessarily new territory for the actor, who's popped up as a voice in films, TV and video games in the past.

"Over the last number of years, I'm no stranger to voice work in animation, so I'm used to it," Wood says. "But getting a chance to work within the context of a universe I was already familiar with was really fun. It just gave the whole experience a more special quality, I think."

The familiar universe of Tron: Uprising also meant more than just the usual voice-over work, though: "The character happens to be extremely physical, so there's a lot of me standing in front of a microphone, punching and kicking the air, and making myself sound like I'm in all sorts of intense physical scenarios, which is pretty hilarious," Wood says. "I'm sure there's some footage of me, standing there looking like an idiot."

Finding the right voice for Beck was easy, as it turns out, since the show's producers really just wanted Wood. "It was determined right away that it would be my own voice," he says, though he cautions that with secret identities and hush-hush rebellions on the menu, it's never that simple.

"When the character is Tron, or The Renegade, we do change his voice a little bit," Wood explains.

"Digitally, they mess with his voice, and I also give it a gravity that Beck doesn't have in his normal Beck mode. The character is split between the two, in a way. Some of those more Tron-Renegade moments definitely have a depth and a gravity to them, and that's fun. It's fun to play around with all of that."

While Tron: Uprising and his live-action TV series, Wilfred, have kept him busy — along with several film projects — Wood is keeping an open mind when it comes to what's next.

"I don't know that I'm ever looking for anything, in particular," Wood admits.

"I'm always intrigued by new challenges and things that I've never done before and new experiences. It sounds so simple, but the primary interest is just something that's good and instills within me some kind of gut feeling that feels like something that I'm passionate and excited about, and there can be multiple variables that can instill that.

But, I'm always just looking to do things that I've never done before, primarily."

Tron: Uprising premieres June 23 on Disney XD.

Playing Frodo Baggins

Speaking of franchises...

Though he seems to be spending most of his time on TV these days, Elijah Wood has a fairly notable big-screen appearance coming up, reprising his role as Frodo Baggins for a cameo in the Hobbit.

Returning to New Zealand was a thrill, Wood says. "It's not often that you have such an intense formative life experience, and then, 10 years later, get to revisit that," he says. "We shot a little bit in Hobbiton, and I realized that I had turned 19 in Hobbiton. I was there 11 years ago. That's bonkers! And it hasn't changed." Well, mostly it hasn't changed: "It just got bigger," he admits. "It's only two movies this time, but there's more trailers than we had last time. It feels bigger, but it's the same atmosphere. Awesome as becoming Frodo again might have been, Wood does admit that one particular moment didn't quite live up to his expectations. "Putting on the feet was very surreal. It was a mix of being incredibly surreal and yet totally normal, because I'd done that for four years," he says. "I actually expected it to be more surreal than it was, but in a way it also just felt like no time had passed and suddenly there I was in costume again."

The world, according to Jane Fonda

JANE FONDA/GETTY IMAGES

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The always outspoken 74-year-old takes on an idealistic aging hippie in her new film, Peace, Love and Misunderstanding.

But Fonda insists that being a hippie was a completely foreign experience for her.

That wasn't all she let us in on.

1. The 1960s

"I lived in France during the 1960s, so my view of the '60s is a more global view. It was a time of tremendous transition for America, but for the world as well. And it wasn't just because of the Vietnam War or the Pill. I'm not a sociologist, so I don't know why it was that almost everywhere in the world there was tumult, but it was. The '60s was about discord and generational splits. When I became an activist in 1970, I missed the '60s. I never was a hippie or anything. I recognize the importance of that decade, having had one leg in the '50s — which I think has been much more idealized as a time of, you know, families were together and everything was well..."

2. She can't stress enough the importance of the Internet

"The technological stuff has changed everything. We can see it overseas even more, with the Arab Spring and so forth. I never used a computer until I was 58. I was married to Ted Turner, and he threw it across the room. He still doesn't use one. I started blogging at 71. Since it was all new to me, suddenly my life became very immediate. I was worried about blogging because I study Zen Buddhism and I meditate and I believe in being in the moment, and this is going to keep me from being in the moment. But what I discovered was that it helped me be in the moment."

3. Kids today don't protest the way they used to

"One of the things that's really interesting is there's no leader (in the Occupy movement).

During the Vietnam War, there were all these organization and they all had leaders — most of them men. I married one. And now there isn't and people get really disturbed by that, but it's really what's so beautiful about it.

It's not ideological, you can't quite get a grip on it, but it's making a difference. Just like that demonstration in Seattle when the WTO met up there. That was in some ways more significant than anything that happened in the '60s."

4. Papa don't preach: She didn't actually learn anything about acting from her dad

"I never could get him to talk to me about acting, ever. I produced On Golden Pond for him, and after our big scene together I still couldn't get him to talk to me about acting. I learned about life from watching his movies — like Grapes of Wrath and 12 Angry Men. It's what made me who I am, the roles he played. I am my dad's daughter and I look like him in many ways, and I'm sure there's things that other people see that I don't. In some ways, I learned more from Katharine Hepburn than my dad."

5. On impressing Katharine Hepburn

"The first thing she ever said to me was, 'I don't like you.' Take the backflip [scene in On Golden Pond]. I had no intention of doing the backflip, so they had a stunt double all set up, and then Hepburn said to me, 'Are you going to do the backflip?' I thought 'oh God, I'm going to have to do it.' My dad couldn't have cared less if I did the backflip myself, but it mattered to her. It took me a month and a half to learn. I'd go out on the raft and do it over and over and over. Finally I made it one day, and I crawled out on the shore and she'd been hiding in the bushes, watching. She came over to me and she said, 'You've taught me to respect you.'"

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon star accused of prostitution

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon star Zhang Ziyi has been accused of earning $110 million by prostituting herself to Chinese government officials and businessmen, according to the Daily Mail. The unsubstantiated claims in Chinese media detail the actress accepting large sums of money from various Beijing officials between 2007 and 2011, with one businessman reportedly forking over $945,000 to sleep with her in 2007. Ziyi has fervently denied the allegations.

Je t'aime: Sparks fly for Mary-Kate Olsen and former French president's brother

Mary-Kate Olsen is reportedly dating former French president Nicolas Sarkozy's younger brother, Olivier Sarkozy, according to Us Weekly. "It's true, they're dating, and she's definitely interested in him," a source says. "MK is constantly complaining about boys not being mature enough for her. She got the kids out of her system. Now being a businesswoman dominates her time, and she is rarely impressed with guys. They are good for each other."

Pon de replay: Rihanna and Drake back together?

Exes Rihanna and Drake, who dated briefly in 2009, may be giving things another go, if their behaviour at a Miami hotspot on a recent night out is any indication. "Rihanna was all over Drake this weekend," a source tells Us Weekly. "They were holding hands and dancing all close on the dance floor." The pair have remained close friends and frequent collaborators since their brief romance. "We weren't really sure what it was," Rihanna previously said in an interview of her dating Drake. "We didn't want to take it any further. It was a really fragile time in my life..."

Cooking up a new app

Mennonite cooking goes high tech

Old Order Mennonite cooking meets modern technology with a new app of Edna Staebler's Food That Really Schmecks cookbook. Staebler's hugely successful cookbook extolled the cuisine and lifestyle of Old Order Mennonites. The book was originally published in 1968 and became a classic, selling tens of thousands of copies. New material on the app includes photos and videos of Staebler and the Waterloo Region countryside. Recipes are searchable and users can upload photos and recipe suggestions that will be shared with all users — just like your grandmother's scribbles in the margins of the family cookbook. It's also possible to upload one's own pictures to the recipes.
This digital book is available for free for a limited time on iTunes.

Beer and iced tea?

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
peterrockwell@eastlink.ca

I've never been one to mess with a good thing, especially when it comes to booze. So for me the blend of hops, yeast, water and grain that defines beer is pretty much perfection.

And while the description of beer includes dozens upon dozens of different varieties that come by their taste profiles naturally, the trend toward flavoured brews is taking the industry by storm.

Beer needs them. Sales have seen better days, and industry innovation seems inspired by 1812 rather than 2012, with old school English-style ales the darlings of the aficionado set.

That's what's fun about Coors Light Iced T (12 x 355 ml, $20.31 - $24.99). On the surface it sounds like a mad attempt to attract a summertime audience with a Franken-blend of two totally foreign liquids.

The good news is that in the glass it tastes just like iced tea without losing the subtle malty expression of the suds — and it's a light beer.

This is the first time the Coors Light brand has been extended outside its singular universe and the pitch hits a solid home run.

Fire up the grill for easy summer veggies

Grilled Vegetable Napoleons. Lazy summer days are too precious to waste in front of a hot stove

1. Preheat barbecue and set on low. Brush vegetables with olive oil, season with salt and pepper, and grill slowly until tender, turning once.

2. Transfer vegetables to a tray, arranging them in a single layer, and cover tightly with plastic wrap. The vegetables may be grilled a day in advance and refrigerated after cooling. Bring the vegetables back to room temperature before proceeding.

3. Stir together the ricotta, thyme, salt and pepper in a small bowl. Place one slice of eggplant on a lightly oiled grill sheet or foil pan. Spread 1 tablespoon of the ricotta mixture over the eggplant. Cover with 2 slices of zucchini, 1 slice of onion, 1 slice of mozzarella, 1 slice of tomato, 2 slices of zucchini and 1 slice of onion. Spread 1 tablespoon of the ricotta mixture over the onion and top with another slice of eggplant. Repeat this procedure with the remaining vegetables to make 5 more stacks.

4. Insert a wooden skewer through the centre of each stack to create a hole from top to bottom. Remove the bottom leaves from each rosemary sprig, leaving one inch of leaves on the top. Insert 1 sprig into the centre hole in each napoleon and return to the barbecue.

5. Heat for about 10 minutes on low, or until mozzarella is melted and vegetables are warmed through.

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 large eggplant, cut in 12 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3 medium zucchinis, cut in 24 slices (1/4" thick)
- 3 large tomatoes, cut in 6 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3 medium red onions, cut in 12 slices (1/3" thick)
- 3/4 cup ricotta cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tsp fresh thyme, chopped
- 1/2 lb mozzarella cheese, sliced 1/4" thick

Kick-start your tomatoes into high gear

Perfect as an appetizer or side dish for your grilled steak, this delicious recipe for Mozzarellissima Grilled Stuffed Tomatoes is sure to be a hit.

1. Cut a slice of approximately 1 cm off the top of each tomato. With a small knife, cut the inside of the fleshy part of the tomato (do not cut through the bottom). Using a spoon, remove the inside of the tomatoes, leaving about 1 cm of flesh attached to skin. Discard the seeds and juice.

2. Lightly salt the inside of the tomatoes; place them with the open sides downwards on a plate covered with paper towels.

3. Cut zucchini lengthwise into 4 slices. Cut the pepper in half and remove the inside. Also cut the half onion in two. Brush vegetables with olive oil and sprinkle with salt, and cook for 8 to 10 minutes on direct medium heat until they are tender. Remove vegetables from heat.

4. Once cooled, chop the zucchini, onion and pepper into small pieces. Add the mint and a drizzle of olive oil to the vegetables. Mix and season to taste.

5. Stuff the tomatoes with the vegetable mixture and top with the Mozzarellissima. Place on barbecue over medium indirect heat, until cheese is melted and vegetables are heated through (approximately 5 to 6 minutes).

Bittman teaches us The Basics

Classic recipes. Food journalist's latest release is a refresher for seasoned cooks and a bible for newbies in the kitchen

TINA CHADHA
Metro World News in New York

Unlike other cookbooks that sit pretty on your living room bookshelf, Mark Bittman's newest release, How to Cook Everything The Basics: All You Need to Make Great Food, stays in the kitchen.

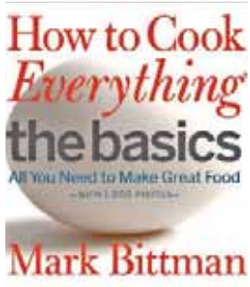
The book — a collection of 185 classic recipes along with instructions for fundamental techniques — is a refresher for seasoned cooks and a confidence-boosting bible for newbies in the kitchen. With 1,000 step-by-step photographs, it's the next best thing to having mom watch over you as you boil a pot of pasta for the first time.

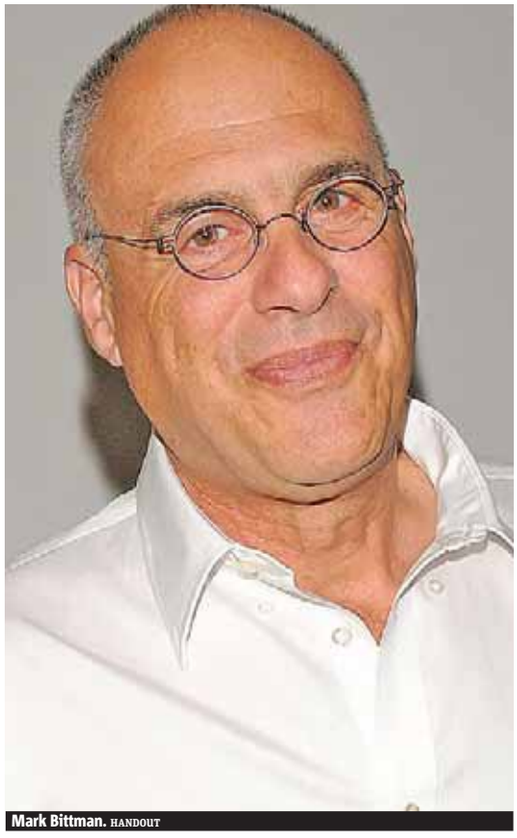
Why did you want to publish The Basics?
It goes back 12 years, actually, to the publication of the original How to Cook Everything, when there were three complaints. One — which is very amusing — is it doesn't have a recipe for chicken pot pie. Then the more serious complaints were that it was overwhelming and some beginners did not like it.

What's your game plan when grocery shopping?
I go to the produce section and buy everything that looks good. And then I keep a really well stocked pantry. I want people to say, 'I'm going to the store to buy what looks good, and then I'm going to come home and there's a cookbook I can look at that's going to tell me what to do with the stuff I just bought.' And that's How to Cook Everything. And hopefully Mark Bittman tells you what to do with it.

What do you say to people who are afraid to cook?
People are afraid to drive also, but everyone eventually gets in a car and drives. No one drives well the first time. And very few people are going to cook well the first time. It means you need to be willing to make mistakes, and there's a level of maturity that indicates. You have to say, 'I have to go through a learning curve on this.'

What appliances do you recommend for small spaces?
An appliance that I think is worth getting is a food processor, because I think it's really useful. Blenders are less important, but are nice to have. I think little gadgets are much more important: a set of three or four really good knives, a good vegetable peeler, a cheap mandoline, and a grater, like a microplane, for Parmesan. I don't have much more than that.





Mark Bittman. HANDOUT

ADVERTORIAL

A family's search for the perfect cottage ends at Lantern Bay Resort in Muskoka.

The search for a family cottage isn't as easy as one might think. Its location, amenities, activities for the kids, and more importantly fitting the purchase into the family budget.
Everyone has a favourite memory of spending summers at the cottage, and if you don't you must have heard a story or two.

The cottage experience is as Canadian as peameal bacon and real maple syrup and should be experienced by everyone at least once in their life. Sitting by a campfire roasting hot dogs and marshmallows, and making "smores" is a rite of passage for any young camper.

As we looked into cottages, we found it was quite simple to find something to rent, but what about ownership? The thought of being able to escape after a long week at work would be great, plus the kids having a safe and memorable place to spend their summers would be more than perfect.

After a lot of research, what we found is, that cottages can be very expensive to say the least. Gone are the days when I grew up, where a $20,000 investment got you a family cottage on the lake. The cottages we liked seemed to cost as much as our home if not more, with some over four hundred thousand dollars.

The more we thought about cottage ownership, the more we realized it would mean two houses to maintain financially and physically. After all the whole idea was to get away from cutting grass and fixing things so I could spend more time with my children and simply relax.

"Fractional Ownership" cottages were affordable but they have maintenance fees and we couldn't justify spending over one hundred thousand dollars for something the family could only use for only 4 or 5 weeks a year.

So what was the answer? Lantern Bay Resort in Muskoka located on the banks of the world famous Trent Waterway was the perfect spot for my family. Approximately 90 minutes from Toronto, Lantern Bay Resort was one of the best waterfront properties we had come across. It sounded all too good to be true, full ownership, maintenance free and activities for the kids...so what was the catch? We soon found out there wasn't one.

After the resort tour, we knew Lantern Bay was the perfect alternative for our family. We got a beautiful location on the water, a short drive from our home and a budget-friendly family "resort cottage" that we own.

These 3-season homes are beautifully furnished and professionally decorated with "at home" amenities including full-sized kitchens, 4-piece baths and large decks, perfect for relaxing on and you can get it all from $79,900 to $119,900. The Resort Cottages are available in one, two and three bedroom floor plans that can sleep up to eight people comfortably.

As owners we can take advantage of the activities and amenities the resort has to offer, from BBQ's, kids activities, fishing, boat rentals, outdoor pool and more! PLUS we can earn up to $10,000 renting our cottage out when we're not using it, with Ventura Resorts Rental Program!

NHL. New Jersey looks to settle nerves while L.A. hopes to bring more energy for Game 2 of cup final

The New Jersey Devils played poorly and almost won.

Coach Peter DeBoer's team looked to turn that into a positive following Wednesday's 2-1 overtime loss to the Los Angeles Kings in Game 1 of the Stanley Cup final. The Devils overcame a slow start to send the game into overtime, only to see Kings star Anze Kopitar decide the affair on a breakaway. Thursday was a light day for both teams, with Game 2 not until Saturday.

After the loss, the Devils were all reading from the same page.

"Not playing our best game and still having a chance to win, that makes us feel pretty good that we can play better and be a little more successful," said forward Travis Zajac.

Forward Ryan Carter added, "We had our chances in that game. Outplayed or not, poor execution or not, we had our chance to win that game. We've got to look into that, stay positive, and try to find a way to win the next one."

Added DeBoer: "We got a chance to get into overtime in the first game with a chance to win."

Unfortunately for the Devils, the Kings also say they have more to bring.

"We played all right. I think it's different adjusting to a new team, adjusting to a different building here," said defenceman Matt Greene. "But we've got to play better if we want to give ourselves a chance to win another game this series."

"I think we can be better," said Kings captain Dustin Brown. "At the end of the day we found a way to win."

Kings coach Darryl Sutter said a lot of his players said they felt sluggish Wednesday.

"I thought we had some nervous players," he said. "Our guys felt they can play better. That's a good thing. And I'm sure the other team is saying the same thing too."

Calder Cup final biggest test yet for Marlies' Scrivens

Ben Scrivens brings some impressive numbers into the Calder Cup final.

But the Toronto Marlies goalie says his stats are "meaningless."

Heading into the Calder Cup final in Norfolk, the 25-year-old leads all AHL goaltenders in the post-season with a 1.61 goals-against average, .944 save percentage and three shutouts. He's also played the most minutes and faced the most shots of any goalie.

"The key for me is to help these guys win," said Scrivens. "If I gave up four goals against, and we were in the same spot, that would be OK."

Scrivens has been solid through three rounds but he'll face his biggest challenge to date when against the Norfolk Admirals for the Calder Cup.

The Admirals (55-18-3), affiliate to the Tampa Bay Lightning, scored a league-best 273 goals in the regular season, 56 more than the Marlies (44-24-8), and lead the playoffs with 45 in 14 games. They host Game 1 on Friday.

"Scrivy's gonna be heavily relied on," said Marlies head coach Dallas Eakins. "He's gonna get his full boat of scoring chances now."

On top of being the best offensive team in the league, Norfolk also set a record for victories with 28 straight and finished atop the AHL standings with 113 points. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Raonic moves on at Roland Garros

Tennis. Thornhill native is seeking to reach fourth round in Paris for the first time

Canadian Milos Raonic defeated American qualifier Jesse Levine 6-4, 7-5, 6-2 on Thursday to reach the third round of the French Open.

The 19th-seeded Thornhill, Ont., native will face a true clay test in the next round when he plays Argentina's Juan Monaco after the 13th seed defeated Czech Lukas Rosol 7-6 (4), 6-0, 7-6 (5).

Raonic claimed his victory in just under two hours with 16 aces. The 21-year-old fired 40 winners and broke Levine five times.

A loser in the first round at Roland Garros last year, Raonic was able to dictate against his 131st-ranked opponent, letting Levine eventually make the errors.

Quoted

"I've got to take care of my serve and play more forehands, not sit around and let the ball come to my backhand too much."

Milos Raonic, on his preparation for his next match against 13th seed Juan Monaco.

Raonic is trying to extend a successful clay season after beating Andy Murray in the Barcelona quarter-finals last month before losing to David Ferrer in the semis.

Raonic saved six break points in victory, dominating in the final set against Levine as he ran away with it on an outside court. He advanced on his first match point as Levine put a return wide.

Raonic admitted the win was far from his best effort.

"The whole first set I struggled with my serve," he said. "Even after that I started getting it, but in glimpses. I wasn't serving consistently well throughout the match."

Due to cooler temperatures of around 16 C, Raonic said he had to adjust his game.

"I wasn't getting as much kick on my second serve," he said. "He was stepping in when I was going to his backhand. But I wasn't getting enough behind the ball, I wasn't accelerating through it.

"I was trying to hit too much to his forehand side rather than just letting myself play. I started doing that in the third set more, just forgetting about everything and just focusing on myself."

The Canadian will be playing for the first time against Monaco, who owns six ATP clay titles, including two this season.

Both men will be bidding to reach the fourth round in Paris for the first time.

Jays remove Lind from 40-man roster

The Toronto Blue Jays have outrighted first baseman Adam Lind to the minors and selected the contract of pitcher Robert Coello.

Lind was optioned to triple-A Las Vegas on May 17 after batting .186 with three home runs and 11 RBI in 34 games for the Jays.

The move takes Lind off the 40-man roster to make room for Coello.

"We needed a spot on the (rotation), so we put (Lind) on waivers a few days ago and he cleared," Blue Jays GM Alex Anthopoulos said on a conference call Thursday. "Whenever he finds his way back here, we'll just clear a spot again."

Coello, a 27-year-old righty, is 3-1 with a 3.22 earned-run average in 17 games with Las Vegas.

Toronto had a spot to fill after left-hander Aaron Laffey was optioned to Las Vegas following Wednesday's 4-1 win over Baltimore.

Anthopoulos said Lind was responding well to being sent Las Vegas.

"He thinks his timing is a lot better and he thinks so far it's going very, very well for him," Anthopoulos said. "His confidence is definitely in the right place, and he feels he's made a lot of changes and adjustments and he's on the right path."

Anthopoulos also said he didn't put much stock into Baltimore pitcher Jason Hammel's assertion that the Blue Jays were stealing signs. Hammel gave up four solo homers in the Orioles' 4-1 loss to the Jays on Wednesday.

"Our players, when they have a bad game, they choose to answer the questions and they blame themselves," he said. "They take accountability and that ends up being the end of it.

"How other players want to handle things is their choice."

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You will surprise people today with your reasonable behaviour.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Focus on what you enjoy and don't worry about whether it is an efficient use of your time and energy.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. With both Venus and Mercury moving through your sign you will know instinctively what is the right thing to do.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. You have so much to look forward to. So why the glum face? By the middle of next week you'll be smiling again.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Relationships will be a lot of fun over the next few days.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You will charm everyone you meet today – and if you meet important people such as employers and senior colleagues you could even earn yourself a pay rise or a promotion, or both.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. You only have to put a name to your desires to see them fulfilled.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. A positive link between mind planet Mercury and Venus, planet of harmony, will bring a respite from your worries and woes.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Relationships will be pleasant today, which is a huge relief after the ups and downs of recent weeks.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. If you are having problems, don't suffer in silence: let those around you know you need assistance.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Use your powers of communication to let others know why you are unhappy with certain situations. But don't talk down to them or blame them for the mess.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Set aside a fixed time for your work and a fixed time for having fun. It does not have to be one or the other: if you plan things sensibly you can have your cake and eat it too.
